

From Learning to Action: Sustainability Training That Delivers

FBRH courses are designed for real-world business impact — helping organisations turn sustainability reporting, materiality, and transparency into better strategic and operational decision-making. Every course is built around a clear plan-of-action methodology that transforms complex sustainability requirements into practical steps, actions, and outcomes that can be applied immediately. Our expert-led training helps participants develop the knowledge, confidence, and practical capability required to apply the GRI Standards and ESRS strategically, support assurance readiness, strengthen governance, and contribute to long-term value creation in today’s rapidly changing business environment.

Why choose FBRH?

- More than two decades of sustainability reporting, training, advisory, and assurance experience.
- Trusted by internationally recognised organisations and leading global brands.
- Enhanced GRI Certified courses designed for maximum real-world application — helping busy professionals understand not only the requirements, but also what actions need to be taken next.
- Practical training built around value-chain thinking, double materiality, governance, risk, impacts, opportunities, and decision-making.
- A strong focus on helping organisations create, preserve, and protect value for the business, stakeholders, and the planet across the short, medium, and long term.
- Training delivered by experienced practitioners with extensive hands-on sustainability reporting and assurance experience.
- Paid mock exams, free webinars, and free self-assurance readiness assessments designed to strengthen confidence, support implementation, and improve preparedness.
- More than 200 participant reviews reflecting our strong commitment to quality, practical relevance, and delivering meaningful value to professionals and organisations.
